In Account class I have: User.find(auth.id) In User I have def self.find_by_id(id) find_by_id(id) end How do I make this find_by_id method usable in my Account class? I don't want to just copy and paste the find_by_id method in every class that needs it, because it's not good practice. A: Generally a method like this would be implemented in some sort of ActiveRecord class, e.g. in a User class. Such a class could be used like this: user = User.find(1) user.account # -> # If a person has_many account, they could do: user.accounts # -> [ ...] You can't really move the method into the Account class, but you could implement it in a module or in some common library module like activesupport (like it is doing the job of User). A: The rule of thumb is that the User class should be a model class. If you want to use a method from User in Account, the method should be defined in User. If it's just find_by_id the technique you're using is sound. The Redeemer: Globalist's Catch-22 The Redeemer: Globalists d0c515b9f4

Abacre.Restaurant.Point.Of.Sale.Professional.v5.5.0.1182.Cracked-CzW.14.4-6 Review TL: Let's talk about the format, shall we? Before we go any further, tell me what your opinion is about these four-round secondary/progressive single elimination format tournaments? [21:00] In this four-round tournament, first place will be given $15,000, then $10,000, then $8,000, and then $6,000, all in real-life money. This makes it easier for me to organize the prize pool and for the players to earn more money. [21:15] The first round is a best-of-three, then the second round is a best-of-one, third and fourth are best-of-five. This is also my first time to have two different formats. [22:10] At this time, I don't know why the third round is called a'rematch.' It is a best-of-five for the first map, and a best-of-one, but after the first map, both teams play a best-of-five on the first map of the next match. {
